Eliot Lewin is an experienced social studies educator in the Commack School District having taught on both the 7th and 8th grade levels for the past 12 years. Eliot was named the 2009 Commack School District Middle School Teacher of the Year. He has instructed a workshop at the Long Island Council for the Social Studies' annual conference on "DBQ's: A How-To for the Middle School Student." He has designed social studies curriculum maps, presented during vertical articulation meetings with high school teachers to discuss strategies to improve performance on thematic and document based essays, and has recently served on a committee to help oversee the revision of the New York State social studies standards. Eliot has created a variety of formative and summative assessments with rubrics to measure student content understanding and skill development in preparation for the Grade 8 Social Studies examination. He also has extensive experience mentoring new social studies teachers.
